of this letter follows:

translation (from the Lithuanian) of an extract

"Yesterday I had a talk with a messenger from the far country. I can tell one thing only. The contact is better than ever before. Also, now the underground movement is not unified under one leadership as it was two or three years ago. Remember that not only in former years but also this year the lives of two messengers sent to us have been taken. In spite of that, the underground movement is still at work and is still democratic. The Christian Democrats are touched too. A message about our activity will pretty soon be brought back."

3. My interpretation of his message is that there are now two separate Lithuanian underground groups; in addition to the Democratic Peasant Party, the Christian Democrats have also formed some sort of an underground group. Second, it has become easier, for some reason, to maintain contact with the Lithuanian underground from Germany. Third, although two messengers have already lost their lives attempting to get out of Lithuania during 1950, some are getting through. The Christian Democrats have also lost men in this way. Fourth, in August, 50, [] was expecting the arrival of a messenger from Lithuania in the near future.
